

THEATRE, CERTIFICATE

The Certificate in Theatre may be completed by any University of Wisconsin–Madison undergraduate student who is not a declared Theatre major. Theatre is a collaborative art form with many varied disciplines and talents working together to create a unified piece of art.

This certificate program offers students the ability to develop knowledge and skills in the theatre discipline. The requirements are designed to be flexible enough for a student to pursue an individual area of interest (for example, in acting, in technical theatre, in costume design, or in stage management) or a combination. This flexible program allows students to shape an individualized plan on study in the certificate with an advisor, to support and/or complement studies in their major or field of study.
